MISSION

To bring fresh food to folks and families by following our MIND/BODY/SOUL approach:

MIND

Food that's smart and health-forward with mindful ingredients, but also regenerative for brain cells and neuroplasticity.

BODY

Food that provides nutrients and easy to digest nutrient education on how it influences improvements in the body.

SOUL

Food that satisfies those innocent indulgences and cravings, those sweet or savory delights that feed the soul.

VISION

The profits from our work will help bring free food events & giveaways to food deserts such as areas in the Antelope Valley (Lake LA, Rosamond, California City) and other locales in need. Our scope includes reaching underserved communities and those in extenuating circumstances (parents who just welcomed new life or take care of loved ones finding it hard to keep balanced meals), and those who simply need a good meal or treat to better their day.

THE MOTIVATION

Originally, Food By Frenchie started as a content page across social media that exhibited some unique and health conscious dishes I created. The response from my followers encouraged me to provide these meals via delivery or pickup as people wanted to try them. It was a hit, but also quite costly and time consuming to keep at it when managing a demanding full-time office job at the time, so the business sat quietly for a while. Unfortunately that organization closed its doors in 2022 resulting in the loss of my 7+ tenure there. With that push, I decided to revitalize Food By Frenchie. So now, we are back and focused on feeding communities while educating them about how and what our bodies need to properly fuel us, but in a way that is essential and easy to digest...literally and figuratively.

So why food prep and delivery you ask? That office job I mentioned afforded me the opportunity to be “boots down” in the community. As a Community Engagement Program Manager, we supported many efforts, but the most rewarding one for me was our Food Distribution initiative. Once a week, we gave away hot meals to families in need and it served a higher purpose of connecting our work with the people of our communities. The hours were early and long but everyone was always in good spirits because we saw the impact it had on families that knew they had a meal to eat that day.
